Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow:

Jesse Owens could run. He could run faster and jump longer than anyone in the world. But when he set out to prove this at the Summer Olympics in Berlin in 1936, no one wanted him there. No one wanted him running that race. He wasn't even welcome in the country, let alone the stadium. But Jesse Owens was an expert at overcoming hurdles and blazing his own path forward. He was determined to compete, no matter how many barriers were in his way.

At the 1936 Summer Games, Jesse Owens became the first person ever in Olympic history to win four gold medals in track and field, claiming victory in the long jump, the 100-meter dash, the 200-meter dash, and as a member of the 4×100 meter relay. His feats remained unmatched until the 1984 Summer Olympics.

The 1936 Summer Olympics were the first to be broadcast on television and took place in Berlin, Germany, during a turbulent time. Fascism was spreading across Europe, and Germany's Chancellor, Nazi leader Adolf Hitler, was at the centre of it. International tensions were high. Europe was on the brink of World War II, which officially broke out three years after the Summer Olympics. People were terrified. But the games and the excitement surrounding them continued in spite of the impending war.

Hitler planned to use the Summer Olympics to prove his theories that "Aryans," or white Europeans, were a superior race to all others. Jesse Owens' success at the Olympics undermined this completely, proving that athletes of colour were not in any way inferior to white athletes. Hitler was angered by Owens' success. He stormed out of the stadium and refused to shake Owens' hand. Instead of stories about German successes, the papers were filled with articles about Owens breaking records and Hitler's overblown response to his wins. Both Owens' medals and Hitler's reaction catapulted Jesse Owens into international fame.

Despite his achievements as a national hero, Owens was still a black man in a deeply divided and racially segregated United States. He faced discrimination and aggression when he returned home. Even as a gold-winning Olympic athlete, he wasn't allowed to ride in the front of the bus. He couldn't use the front door to enter public buildings. He couldn't raise his family where he wanted. Jesse Owens wasn't invited to shake hands with Adolf Hitler after his biggest win, but he wasn't invited to shake hands with President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, either.

He eventually set up a public relations and marketing business in Chicago, Illinois, and travelled the country to speak at conventions and other business gatherings. He encouraged individual achievement, regardless of race, class, or creed. His speeches often called back to why he fell in love with running in the first place — it was something he could do himself without having to rely on others to allow him to do it.

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow:

The dirt under your feet is easy to overlook. But just because it's common doesn't mean it's boring. Some researchers call soil the skin of the earth. "It's the most important part of the planet, because it covers everything," says Lorna Dawson. She's a soil scientist at the James Hutton Institute in Aberdeen, Scotland.

Soil is the complex mix of minerals, carbon-rich matter, water and air that forms Earth's surface layer. It does crucial jobs such as growing our food, cleaning the air and storing water. Soil contains the decomposing remains of plants and animals. And it's alive with countless microbes, such as bacteria and fungi. Deep layers in bogs contain evidence of the activities of ancient peoples. And high in the Arctic, frozen soil holds bacteria that might one day help protect the planet. Janet Jansson studies soil that is permanently frozen. Called permafrost, it covers a large portion of Earth's Arctic surface. It also accounts for almost one-fourth of all land in the Northern Hemisphere.

But scientists worry that some permafrost might not be permanent much longer. Human activities in recent decades have been spewing excess carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases into the atmosphere. Those gases trap heat close to the planet's surface, driving up temperatures. Not surprisingly, temperatures have been rising all across the globe, especially up north. That could spur big areas of permafrost to melt. Because permafrost performs a really important job, its loss could lead to many problems. Jansson studies dirt in cold places. Others are using dirt to solve cold cases. Soil also holds clues to major unsolved mysteries. Dirt under a shoe or on someone's clothing can help scientists catch criminals.

For nearly two decades, Lorna Dawson studied how different types of soil form. Her career took a turn in 2003, when a police officer came to her lab and asked Dawson to help solve a crime. The officer wondered whether dirt from the bottom of a suspect's boot could help pinpoint the location of buried drugs. Dawson analyzed the soil and compared it to soil samples in her lab. She matched molecules of plant matter from the soil on the boot to a particular forest. That's where the police looked — and found the drugs.

Explains Dawson, "There's soil on most outdoor crime scenes. It contains hidden clues." The work she did for the police switched her scientific focus. Today she is a forensic soil scientist. Her lab at the James Hutton Institute is one of the few in the world to focus on using soil in crime-solving. It helps investigators figure out where a crime took place, and where the perpetrator may have gone before or after committing a crime. Tiny bits of material trapped in soil can provide clues. Those bits may come from plants, clothing, algae — even air pollution.

Dawson says being ready to stand up and testify in court is one of the most rewarding parts of her job. "Soil science," she notes, "is one piece of the investigative jigsaw [puzzle] that can help to bring justice." Question Number: 156 Question Id: 5861806864 Question Type: MCQ Option Shuffling: Yes

नीचे दिये गए गद्यांश को पढ़कर पूछे गये प्रश्नों के उत्तर दीजिए।
साहित्य में मानवीय संवेदनाओं की गहन व्याख्या होती है। धर्म नैतिक मूल्यों की
परीक्षा के साथ कितपय आदर्श एवं सिद्धांतों का प्रतिपादन करता है। साहित्य में इन
मूल्यों तथा आचार संहिता के अनुरूप पात्रों के चिरत्र का निर्माण होता है। कथानक
चाहें कहीं से भी लिया गया क्यों न हो, परंतु उसका केंद्र बिंदु वही आदर्श होता है। यह
आदर्श धर्म के नाम पर मानव समुदाय पर एक प्रकार से नैतिकता के मानदंड के रूप में
स्थापित है। यदि मानव समाज ने इन मूल्यों की अवहेलना की, तो उन्हें धर्मच्युत
ठहराकर बिरादरी से बहिष्कृत करने की परिपाटी भी रही है। अतः साहित्य की संरचना
में उपर्युक्त मूल्यों की रक्षा के साथ-साथ उन आदर्शों का प्रतिपादन भी आवश्यक माना
गया। एकरूपता समस्त साहित्य में अंतर्वाहिनी के रूप में परिलक्षित होती है।
