Directions (41-49): Read the following passage and answer the given questions.

In the labyrinth of global finance, bank mergers stand as colossal milestones, reshaping the landscape with each union. These mergers are not mere business transactions but strategic moves that redefine market dynamics, influence economies, and alter the balance of financial power. At their core, bank mergers are driven by the pursuit of efficiency, market expansion, and enhanced competitive edge. However, beneath this surface lies a complex web of implications for stakeholders ranging from shareholders to the average customer.

Through consolidation, banks aim to achieve economies of scale, hoping to lower costs and increase profitability. This is particularly vital in an era marked by intense competition and technological advancements. Mergers also offer banks access to new markets, diversifying their customer base and spreading their operational risks. Furthermore, the amalgamation of technological resources post-merger can lead to innovative financial services, benefiting consumers.

However, these mergers are not without their challenges. They often lead to a concentration of market power, which can stifle competition and lead to higher fees and interest rates for consumers. Regulatory hurdles are another significant aspect, as governments and financial authorities scrutinize these deals for potential threats to economic stability and consumer interests. Lastly, the cultural integration of merging entities poses a substantial challenge, often determining the success or failure of the merger.

Q68. The global economy is inherently subject to cycles of expansion and contraction. In periods of economic growth, the gross domestic product (GDP) of countries tends to _____(63), leading to increased employment and consumer spending. However, this growth is not indefinite; eventually, the economy hits a point of _____(64), where growth stagnates or starts to decline. This is often followed by a period of economic _____(65), marked by reduced consumer spending, increased unemployment, and declining business profits.

To counteract these downturns, governments and central banks often implement monetary and fiscal policies. One common strategy is to _____(66) interest rates, making borrowing cheaper and encouraging investment and spending. Alternatively, governments may increase public _____(67) to stimulate the economy. These measures aim to shorten the duration of the recession and _____(68) the impacts on the economy.

However, these interventions must be carefully calibrated. If mismanaged, they can lead to unintended consequences like inflation or increased national _____(69), which can further complicate economic recovery.

Directions (70-75): Read the following passage and answer the given questions.

In India, a nation where agriculture is not just an occupation but the backbone of its economy, the state of farmers reflects broader socio-economic realities. Indian farmers, constituting approximately 58% of the population, grapple with a multitude of challenges. These range from erratic weather patterns exacerbated by climate change to burdensome debts due to high input costs and inadequate pricing mechanisms for their produce. Furthermore, the small landholdings, accounting for 86% of the total, significantly limit economies of scale, thereby impeding profitability.

Despite the government's efforts through various schemes like the Pradhan Mantri Kisan Samman Nidhi (PM-KISAN), which aims to provide income support, and the National Agriculture Market (e-NAM) intended to ensure better prices through a digital marketplace, the impact on the ground remains limited. Structural issues like lack of access to modern technology, inadequate storage and transportation facilities, and an overdependence on monsoon rains continue to overshadow these initiatives.

Moreover, the recent shifts towards industrialization and urbanization have further complicated the agricultural landscape. The young generation is increasingly disenchanted with farming, leading to a decline in agricultural workforce and knowledge transference. As a result, the plight of Indian farmers is a complex interplay of environmental, economic, and social factors, requiring multifaceted solutions that address both immediate hardships and long-term sustainability.

Q70. What does the passage primarily suggest about the state of Indian farmers?

- (a) It revolves around the impact of government schemes like PM-KISAN and e-NAM, which have successfully alleviated the hardships of farmers by providing financial support and better market access.
- (b) The primary issue for Indian farmers is the erratic weather patterns caused by climate change, which has severely affected their agricultural output and economic stability.
- (c) Indian farmers face a range of challenges, including climate change, debt, small landholdings, and structural issues, despite government efforts to improve their situation.
- (d) The decline in the agricultural workforce due to urbanization and industrialization is the most significant challenge facing Indian farmers.
- (e) The state of Indian farmers is improving due to young people's growing interest in agriculture, bolstered by government schemes and technological advancements.

Q71. Identify the incorrect statement based on the passage.

S41. Ans.(b)

Sol. Correct Answer: (b) To achieve economies of scale and market expansion

Explanation: The passage states, "At their core, bank mergers are driven by the pursuit of efficiency, market expansion, and enhanced competitive edge." This line clearly indicates that the primary drivers are efficiency, market expansion, and gaining a competitive advantage, aligning with Option B.

S42. Ans.(c)

Sol. Correct Answer: (c) Concentration of market power leading to possible higher fees for consumers

Explanation: The passage mentions, "They often lead to a concentration of market power, which can stifle competition and lead to higher fees and interest rates for consumers." This sentence validates that a significant challenge of bank mergers is the concentration of market power and its potential impact on consumers, as described in Option c.

S43. Ans.(a)

Sol. Correct Answer: (a) By providing a wider range of financial services

Explanation: The passage explains, "Furthermore, the amalgamation of technological resources post-merger can lead to innovative financial services, benefiting consumers." This suggests that one of the benefits for consumers is the potential for a wider range of innovative financial services, corresponding with Option A.

S44. Ans.(b)

Sol. Correct Answer: (b) They scrutinize mergers for potential threats to economic stability and consumer interests

Explanation: The passage states, "Regulatory hurdles are another significant aspect, as governments and financial authorities scrutinize these deals for potential threats to economic stability and consumer interests." This line directly supports Option B, indicating that regulatory authorities are involved in scrutinizing the mergers for potential risks.

S45. Ans.(c)

Sol. The incorrect statement is:

Mergers lead to an automatic reduction in banking service fees.

Explanation:

For option c, the passage does not state that mergers lead to an automatic reduction in banking service fees. In fact, it suggests that the concentration of market power might lead to higher fees for consumers.

Verification of Other Options:

Option a is correct as the passage states, "At their core, bank mergers are driven by the pursuit of efficiency, market expansion, and enhanced competitive edge."

Option b is supported by the line, "They often lead to a concentration of market power, which can stifle competition..."

Option d is validated by the statement, "the cultural integration of merging entities poses a substantial challenge, often determining the success or failure of the merger."

Option e is correct according to, "governments and financial authorities scrutinize these deals for potential threats to economic stability and consumer interests."

S46. Ans.(c)

Sol. They may stifle competition and lead to higher fees for consumers. The passage mentions, "They often lead to a concentration of market power, which can stifle competition and lead to higher fees and interest rates for consumers."

Explanation:

For option b, the passage states, "Furthermore, the amalgamation of technological resources post-merger can lead to innovative financial services, benefiting consumers." This supports the statement that the integration of technological resources is a key benefit of bank mergers.

Verification of Other Options:

Option(a) is not supported by the passage, which focuses on efficiency and market expansion rather than workforce reduction.

Option (c) is incorrect as the passage does not guarantee lower interest rates; in fact, it suggests the opposite might occur due to market power concentration.

Option (d) is not mentioned or implied in the passage.

Option (e) is contradicted by the passage, which states that regulatory authorities play a significant role in scrutinizing mergers for potential threats.

The correct phrase should be "Every student in the class". This error is related to subject-verb agreement and the singular form of nouns used with quantifiers like "every".

S56. Ans.(d)

Sol. Correct Answer: (d) Were surprisingly high

Explanation: The error is in Part (D). The correct verb form should be "was" because the subject "The number of" is singular. The correct phrase should be "was surprisingly high". This is another case of subject-verb agreement where the subject "the number" (singular) dictates a singular verb.

S57. Ans.(a)

Sol. Correct Answer: (a) There is

Explanation: The error is in Part (A). The phrase should be "There are" because "a variety of reasons" is considered a plural subject. The correct phrase should be "There are a variety of reasons". This is due to the subject-verb agreement rule where the verb should match the plurality of the subject.

S58. Ans.(c)

Sol. Correct Answer: (c) Is well-known

Explanation: The error is in Part (C). The subject "His abilities" is plural, so the verb should be "are" instead of "is". The correct phrase should be "are well-known". This is a subject-verb agreement issue where the verb must agree in number with its plural subject.

S59. Ans.(d)

Sol. Correct Answer: (d) Are the understanding

Explanation: The error is in Part (D). The correct verb form should be "is" because the subject of the sentence is "One", which is singular. The correct phrase should be "is the understanding". This is a common mistake in sentences starting with "One of the", where the verb should agree with "One", not the plural noun following it.

S60. Ans.(e)

Sol. Correct Answer: (e) All are correct.

Explanation: All parts of the sentence are grammatically correct. "Neither of the two solutions" correctly uses the singular verb "seems" because "neither" is a singular subject when referring to two things. This follows the rule of subject-verb agreement where singular subjects take singular verbs.

S61. Ans.(c)

Sol. Correct Answer: (c) Has completed the survey

Explanation: The error is in Part (C). The correct verb form should be "have" instead of "has". The phrase should be "participants who have completed the survey". This is because "Many of the participants" is a plural subject, and thus, it requires a plural verb for agreement.

S62. Ans.(b)

Sol. Correct Answer: (b) Are planning to

Explanation: The error is in Part (B). The subject "The committee" is singular, and the verb should be "is" instead of "are". The correct phrase should be "The committee is planning to". In English, collective nouns like "committee" are usually treated as singular, especially when we are thinking of the group as a single entity.

S70. Ans.(c)*Sol. The correct answer is C. This is supported by various parts of the passage. For instance, "Indian farmers, constituting approximately 58% of the population, grapple with a multitude of challenges" highlights the range of issues they face. Specific challenges are detailed further: "erratic weather patterns exacerbated by climate change," "burdensome debts," "small landholdings," and "despite the government's efforts through various schemes." These points collectively support option C, which comprehensively captures the broad spectrum of difficulties faced by Indian farmers, including but not limited to government initiatives, environmental challenges, and economic constraints. Options A, B, D, and E are too narrow or inaccurate representations of the passage's content.S71. Ans.(b)*Sol. The incorrect statement is B. The passage acknowledges the government's efforts through schemes like PM-KISAN but indicates that "the impact on the ground remains limited." This implies that these schemes have not completely resolved the financial issues of farmers. The other statements are accurate reflections of the passage's content.S72. Ans.(b)*Sol. The synonym for 'plight' in this context is B, Predicament. In the passage, 'plight' refers to the difficult or unfavorable situation faced by Indian farmers. 'Predicament' means a difficult, unpleasant, or embarrassing situation, which aligns with the meaning of 'plight.' The other options are not synonyms: 'Fortune' and 'Prosperity' suggest good luck or success, 'Advantage' refers to a condition or circumstance that puts one in a favorable position, and 'Benefit' is something that provides an advantage or gain.S73. Ans.(c)*Sol. The correct answer is option (c), Only (II). This is supported by specific lines from the passage:

For option (II), the passage explicitly states, "Structural issues like lack of access to modern technology, inadequate storage and transportation facilities, and an overdependence on monsoon rains continue to overshadow these initiatives." This line directly supports the statement that one of the structural issues in Indian agriculture is the lack of access to modern technology.

The other options are not supported by the passage:

Option (I) is incorrect because the passage does not mention an overreliance on technology; instead, it highlights a lack of access to modern technology.

Option (III) contradicts the passage, which mentions an overdependence on monsoon rains, indicating that Indian agriculture is not fully independent of these rains.

Option (IV) is directly contradicted by the passage, which mentions inadequate storage and transportation facilities, not well-developed ones.

The passage clearly outlines the structural challenges faced by Indian farmers, emphasizing issues like inadequate access to technology and dependence on traditional practices like reliance on monsoon rains.

S74. Ans.(c)

Sol. The antonym of 'exacerbated' is C, Alleviated. In the passage, 'exacerbated' is used in the context of worsening weather patterns due to climate change. 'Exacerbate' means to make a bad situation worse. 'Alleviate' means to make less severe, which is the opposite of exacerbating. The other options are synonyms or related in meaning to 'exacerbate': 'Aggravated,' 'Worsened,' 'Intensified,' and 'Escalated' all imply an increase in severity or intensity.

S75. Ans.(b)

Sol. The correct answer is option (b), Both (II) and (III). This can be supported by specific lines from the passage:

For option (II), the passage states, "the National Agriculture Market (e-NAM) intended to ensure better prices through a digital marketplace." This supports the idea that e-NAM is designed to provide better market access and fair pricing for farmers' produce through a digital platform.

For option (III), the passage notes, "Despite the government's efforts through various schemes... the impact on the ground remains limited." This indicates that while the government initiatives aim to support farmers, they have not been completely successful in improving the overall situation of farmers significantly.

Options (I) and (IV) are not supported by the passage:

Option (I) is incorrect because the passage does not claim that PM-KISAN has transformed the agricultural sector entirely or addressed all major concerns of farmers.

Option (IV) is contradicted by the passage, as it does not mention the complete eradication of debt among farmers due to government initiatives.
